Description

A refined and sculptural Italian Art Deco stool, dating from the 1920s and crafted from richly nuanced walnut. This elegant piece exemplifies the early Italian interpretation of the Art Deco movement, where classical influences, luxurious materials, and modern geometry met in a unique and expressive way. With its graceful silhouette and beautifully preserved details, it testifies to the craftsmanship of the era. The stool features armrests carved from solid walnut, with outward-sweeping curves that lend it a sense of movement and architectural elegance. The pedestal-shaped legs anchor the design with a bold and symmetrical presence, while the warm grain of the walnut adds depth and natural richness. Its balanced, sculptural proportions make this stool as decorative as it is functional.

Remarkably, it retains its original 1920s upholstery, a textured fabric in warm tones that harmonizes with the walnut frame. The fabric has a soft, even patina, typical of a century-old textile, adding authenticity and historical charm. Its preservation testifies to the care taken in its conservation. The walnut frame has been professionally restored, enhancing the clarity of the wood grain while respecting the integrity of the original craftsmanship. The result is a surface that is both modern and refined, retaining the unique character bestowed by time.
