Description

Elegant cut crystal vase raised on a foot, produced during the 20th century. The body is decorated with a refined chevron cut pattern, resting on a star-cut base that beautifully captures and reflects the light, giving the piece a particularly decorative presence. The vase was previously attributed to the Kristalunie manufacture in Maastricht, although in the absence of a signature, a production by Val Saint-Lambert cannot be entirely ruled out. In any case, this is clearly a high-quality European crystal production from the 20th century. With its strong geometric cutting and balanced proportions, the vase evokes the aesthetic heritage of the Art Deco period. Its generous size and the quality of the crystal also give it a beautiful resonant
