Description

x 19.5cm
