Description

This vibrant and sculptural modular sofa is a Roche Bobois creation, made in France in the 1980s, a decade in which the brand explored bold forms, expressive textiles, and a playful spirit of luxury. This striking composition combines a solid red fabric with a richly printed one, creating a dynamic visual rhythm that is both typical of its era and surprisingly contemporary. Its modular structure allows for multiple configurations, from a classic linear arrangement to an enveloping corner composition. The rounded corner element and matching ottoman soften the geometric lines, giving the whole a fluid and inviting presence. The mix of solid and patterned fabrics, adorned with geometric and abstract motifs in warm tones, captures the eclectic and optimistic aesthetic that characterized late 20th-century French design.
