Description

A traditional folk-style wardrobe, crafted from wood and entirely hand-painted, exemplifies the decorative taste of regional furniture from the 18th and 19th centuries. The front is adorned with a delicate, hand-painted polychrome floral design, composed of stylized bouquets and vegetal friezes running along the uprights and panels. The composition features two large central panels decorated with rustic bouquets, framed by finely drawn floral borders, evoking the aesthetic of painted peasant furniture from Central Europe and the Alpine regions. The soft, warm hues--cream and light ochre--enhance the freshness and spontaneity of the decoration. The piece is topped with a straight cornice and rests on a simple base, emphasizing the balance of its proportions. The simple hardware and traditional
