Description

Elegant Italian prie-dieu dating from the mid-18th century, characterized by a refined and slightly curved silhouette with a gently convex front. The piece is finely veneered and inlaid with various decorative woods and burr veneers, creating an elegant decorative effect through the natural grain patterns and delicate string inlays framing the surfaces. The quality of craftsmanship and balanced proportions are typical of fine Italian production of the 18th century intended for private devotion. The structure is solid and entirely original in all its parts, with a well-preserved antique patina. The front presents a slightly convex shape, which enhances the elegance of the piece. Ideal both as a devotional object and as a refined decorative element in a classic interior. Period: mid 18th century Origin:
