Description

Antique Ship in a Bottle - Three-Masted Schooner - Nautical Ex-Voto - 19th Century Folk Art. Antique ship in a bottle, a piece of 19th-century nautical folk art. This charming creation depicts a three-masted schooner meticulously placed inside a bottle. This type of object was often made by sailors during long voyages and could also serve as an ex-voto, testifying to maritime tradition and the piety of seafarers. The scene presents a finely crafted ship with its masts, rigging, and flag, illustrating the patient skill involved in this work carried out on board. The bottle is in good condition. Note a few marks inside, evidence of its age. A French example of nautical folk art. An object full of charm and history, typical of 19th-century maritime memorabilia.
