Description

Oil on canvas depicting a cluttered interior scene: a dog, tongue lolling, hides behind a studio bedside table, seemingly drawn by the scent of an open drawer containing a row of fried eggs. Imbued with irony, dark humor, and provocation, José Garcia Cordero has established himself with a refined, richly colored style, creating a visual sensory experience. A boundary between the absurd and surrealism. Size 60 F130 x 97 cm Signed lower left (garcia cordero 92) Two exhibition brochures are included (see last photo and bibliography in this listing). José Garcia Cordero (1951 -) is an artist from Santo Domingo, born in Santiago (Dominican Republic). He has participated in numerous exhibitions worldwide. in solo exhibitions (such as in Florida (1994), Vitry-sur-Seine (1992), Paris
