Description

An oval dining table with an organic design, mid-20th century, by Maurizio Marconato & Terry Zappa for Porada, Italy. The tabletop features a beautiful elliptical shape in solid wood or veneer with visible grain and a warm honey hue. The table rests on two sculptural, curved legs with fluid and dynamic lines, connected by a central stretcher for stability. The slender legs create an impression of lightness while adding a highly decorative character. The edge of the tabletop is slightly beveled, highlighting the elegance of the design. Visible characteristics: Shape: oval; Material: teak wood; Base: double sculpted base with central stretcher; Style: organic; Estimated period: 1970s. Condition: Good overall condition with some signs of wear and minor marks visible on the tabletop and legs,
