Description

This marine oil on canvas resonates with French Impressionism of the late 19th century (reminiscent of the circle or followers of Eugène Boudin) and captures the fleeting poetry of winter twilight. The composition is built on a complex colour palette of a fading fiery sunset and shades of the approaching cold night, giving the scene incredible depth. The artist masterfully uses broad brushstrokes, creating an almost tangible sense of what is happening on the canvas. Dark silhouettes of sailboats, contrasting against the radiant horizon and the calm surface of the water, fill the painting with peaceful contemplation. This artwork not only adds elegance to the interior but also brings to it a poetic narrative of a winter evening on the seacoast. DETAILS: Artist: Unidentified; indistinctly signed lower
