Description

A vibrant and expressive large-format canvas by Belgian artist Marja Boekhout, created in 2004, reveals her inimitable visual language: flat planes of vivid color, rhythmic contours, and a poetic, almost dreamlike interpretation of the rural landscape. This work captures the essence of her style: joyful, graphic, and deeply rooted in place. The composition unfolds like a stylized tapestry of fields, trees, and village architecture, arranged in harmonious geometric blocks. Boekhout's use of saturated greens, yellows, oranges, and blues creates a dynamic interplay between earth and sky, while the strong outlines lend the work a modern, almost sculptural clarity. The rising sun and swirling sky introduce movement and emotion, transforming a peaceful pastoral scene into a lyrical and vibrant work. The characteristic
