Description

A rare and sculptural leather pouf, designed by Lowie Vermeersch for the Belgian manufacturer Durllet in 1999. This piece reflects the innovative spirit of late 20th-century Belgian design, where craftsmanship, ergonomics, and expressive forms were boldly and modernly combined. The pouf has an organic, four-lobed silhouette; soft, rounded, and inviting from every angle. Its playful geometry is characteristic of Vermeersch's stylistic language, which often blends fluid forms with functional clarity. Low and stable, it offers both a comfortable seat and a striking sculptural piece. Upholstered in supple leather, this pouf showcases Durllet's renowned leatherwork expertise. The stitching, panels, and subtle shapes underscore the brand's commitment to precision and durability. The leather has developed a
