Description

An elegant Napoleon III period travel perfume case, crafted from ebonized wood and precious wood marquetry, adorned with copper inlays. The case opens to reveal a refined interior lined with blue velvet, showcasing two faceted crystal bottles, enhanced with gilt. Matching stoppers harmoniously complete the ensemble. This type of case was designed for transporting perfumes or precious essences while traveling. The exterior decoration, understated and elegant, is punctuated by veneer reserves and metal inlays typical of Second Empire production, combining discreet luxury with functionality. It retains its original key, a highly sought-after feature for this type of case. Period: Napoleon III (circa 1850-1870)
Materials: ebonized wood, wood marquetry, copper inlays, crystal, brass Contents: two crystal
