Description

Freemason jewel of a Rose-Croix. Model featuring a pelican surmounted by a rose croix. The arc of the compass is engraved, on each face, with the symbolic words of the degree. The distinctive feature of this jewel is the representation of the eagle on the front, not the back. It towers above the compass and the radiant triangle. Dimensions: height 8 cm, width 5 cm. Late 19th, early 20th century. Very good condition
