Description

This original signed and numbered lithograph depicts a lively circus scene with two elephants performing inside a ring while a ringmaster and clown stand nearby observing the act. The composition is rendered in a limited palette of muted grey-blue and warm red tones, with expressive linework and layered lithographic textures creating movement and atmosphere within the performance setting. Stylized figures, simplified forms, and graphic contrasts reflect the character of mid-20th-century European figurative printmaking. Artist signature present but not currently identifiable. The print demonstrates confident draughtsmanship and effective use of lithographic layering to build tonal depth and movement. The circus subject and stylized
