Description

Pair of "Oasis" chairs by Gian Franco Legler for Zanotta, 1960s. The wooden frame features slender lines and a distinctly "architectural" feel: straight uprights, exposed crossbars, and light proportions. The seat and back are upholstered in stretched leather, attached with straps/rollers, providing supple comfort and a beautiful patina over time. The contrast between the warm wood and brown leather creates an elegant presence, easily integrated into both contemporary and mid-century interiors. A decorative and functional set, typical of Italian design of the period: minimal, precise, and exceptionally well-constructed. Gianfranco Legler, an Italian designer active in the 20th century, is associated with furniture designs characterized by clean, rational lines. His pieces often emphasize the
