Description

"Walking Bull" by Isidore Bonheur. This small-scale piece illustrates the sculptor's talent with a highly realistic and expressive composition that reveals the animal's beauty. The casting is old, 19th century, and of very high quality. It has a brown patina and is signed in relief on the base. Isidore Bonheur (1827-1901) was a French animal sculptor, famous for his realistic and expressive depictions of animals, particularly horses and bulls. Born into a family of artists, he was influenced by his older sister, Rosa Bonheur, also an animal artist.
