

Light Cavalry Officer's Saber - Empire

Description

Light cavalry officer's saber, Hussar or Chasseur à Cheval. Its overall appearance is characteristic of the Revolutionary/Consulate period.

Hungarian-style hilt: a simple guard branch joining the crossguard at a right angle with a grooved face, a quillon curved downwards, a pommel with a long tail conforming to the shape of a lion's muzzle, and long, shuttle-shaped quillons. On the hilt side, the quillon and the quillon are stamped LG. Blackened leather grip. Filigree formed by a chain between two twists of brass wire. Curved Solingen blade with a single fuller, blued for one-third of its length and decorated with floral motifs. On the counter-guard side, the crossguard and blade are marked with three dots stamped with a punch, likely the maker's marks. No scabbard. This saber
