Description

An elegant pair of carved wooden stools forming a panchetti, resting on four turned legs decorated with balusters and joined by a twisted stretcher known as a torciglione. The set displays a rich decorative vocabulary inspired by the Italian Baroque, with generous volumes and a rhythmic design. The molded apron supports a caned seat, providing visual lightness and contrast to the carved structure. The ivory lacquered wood finish, enhanced with partial gilding, gives the set a striking decorative presence, underscored by a slightly worn patina that reinforces its character. Italian Baroque work, probably from the late 19th century, incorporating elements and a formal language of earlier styles.
