Description

? Pair of Ilmari Tapiovaara Scandinavian Chairs - Rare Variant with Organic Seat, Sweden

1950s/60s ? Elegant pair of Scandinavian chairs attributed to Ilmari Tapiovaara, produced in Sweden in the 1950s-60s, in the style of models produced by Edsby-Verken. Less common than the famous Fanett chairs, these chairs present a freer and more expressive variation on design, notably through their seats with organic, almost sculpted contours, which break with standardized forms. The slender, perfectly proportioned black-stained wooden frame is characteristic of Tapiovaara's work. The backrest with slightly flared vertical slats creates a line that is both graphic and light, a signature of post-war Nordic design. The seat, with its irregular and softened curves, brings a more handcrafted and warm dimension. It evokes Tapiovaara's exploration of comfort and functional simplicity, while introducing a rarer aesthetic variation. The contrast between the satin black of the base and the warm hue of the wood highlights the purity of the lines and enhances the overall elegance. High-quality construction with solid joinery. The "Made in Sweden" mark under the seat attests to its vintage Scandinavian production. Perfect around a table, as occasional seating, or as decorative pieces, these chairs fit seamlessly into both contemporary and vintage interiors. A less common pair than the Fanett models, offering a more organic and unique interpretation of Tapiovaara's design. Dimensions: Width 45 cm - Depth 48 cm - Height 83 cm. Seat height: 45 cm.
