Description

An Art Nouveau upright piano, made around 1900 by the French manufacturer P. Charuis. This remarkable piece is distinguished by the quality of its walnut with its flame-like grain, arranged in a mirrored pattern, offering a richly natural and visually striking design. The front is adorned with delicate carved relief motifs, featuring scrolling foliage and vegetal arabesques, characteristic of the Art Nouveau movement. The upper panel incorporates an openwork wooden music stand, harmoniously integrated into the decorative composition. The side rails and legs have beautifully curved lines, emphasizing the overall elegance of the piece. The brass elements, notably the pedals and keyhole escutcheons, add a refined touch to the whole. A fine example of French craftsmanship, illustrating the expertise of piano
