Description

A large decorative statuette of a knight in full armor, crafted from patinated and finely engraved metal, presented on a wooden base. Its scale, verticality, and immediately legible silhouette allow this piece to function as a sculptural element in its own right, capable of structuring a space without overwhelming it. The partially open helmet reveals a sculpted face with understated modeling, lending a human and narrative dimension that creates a natural focal point in an interior composition. The nuanced patina and consistent engraving allow for easy integration into both contemporary and classic environments: libraries, executive offices, entrance halls, reception areas, or stage sets. A distinctive object, conceived as a visual presence rather than a strictly historical representation, this
