Description

Double-sided curved walnut desk - Regional work from the Louis XV period - 18th century - later addition. Charming solid walnut desk in the Louis XV style, made in the 19th century, opening on both sides, offering great functionality and a beautiful decorative presence. The main front features three molded doors with scalloped lines, highlighted by beautiful wrought iron fittings. The slightly curved sides reflect the tradition of regional furniture. The interior reveals a practical and balanced layout: a storage space with shelves, a central compartment, and a side drawer unit with four drawers. The whole piece demonstrates its versatile use, both as a desk and as a storage unit. The top, with its gently undulating contours, rests on a solid and elegant structure, enhanced by warm-toned walnut with a
