Description

A pair of bronze andirons with an antique patina, resting on a wrought iron frame. Each element is decorated with a relief motif known as "the marmosets," depicting a stylized female face with flowing hair, rendered in a decorative style inherited from the 18th century. The sides feature radiating medallions framed by small spherical knobs, while the upper section is surmounted by a turned ball, a characteristic element of this type of andiron. The slightly curved front feet terminate in small rollers.
