Period : 20th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Chromium

Description

Japanese folding stool. Designed by Yasuaki Sasamoto for Dulton, late 1970s. This stool, reminiscent of drummer stools with its chrome tripod base, also draws inspiration from tractor seats. The entire piece is made of chromed steel. The seat is height-adjustable, and the legs also fold, making it very easy to transport and store. The stool is stable, and the seat shape is very comfortable. Height adjustable between 38 cm and 55 cm. Width: 37 cm.
