Description

A beautiful late 19th-century oil on canvas depicting two hunting dogs in a plains landscape under a vibrant sky. The scene accurately conveys the animals' energy, the tension of the hunt, and the open atmosphere of the countryside. The work is signed lower right O. Vollrath and dated 1893. Otto Vollrath (1856-1912) was a German animal painter known for his hunting scenes and depictions of animals in landscapes. The composition is captivating in its naturalism, the finely rendered dogs, and its nuanced palette. This painting is on canvas and is presented unframed. Dimensions: 48 cm x 33 cm. Condition: very good overall condition; there is an old, stable, shell-shaped surface craquelure consistent with the period.
