Description

Louis XV Period Curved Writing Desk - 18th Century. This important Louis XV period curved writing desk, crafted in walnut, features an elegant curved front and fine workmanship. It combines the functions of a chest of drawers in the lower section and a writing desk in the upper section, offering both practicality and refinement, characteristic of 18th-century French furniture. The drop-front reveals a carefully arranged interior, composed of drawers and compartments resting on a writing surface. A secret drawer is a discreet and sought-after detail, demonstrating the refined design. The front is adorned with panels featuring geometric marquetry, highlighted by stringing, adding elegance and depth to the piece. The front opens with four drawers: two small drawers in the upper section and two large
