Description

Description: An exceptional and rare 19th-century rotating globe clock, combining scientific instrument and horology in a sophisticated and decorative form. This piece features a globe signed "Ludwig Julius Heymann, Leipzig," mounted on an elegant gilt brass structure, all resting on a refined Belgian black marble base. The globe is mechanically linked to the clock movement and rotates continuously, illustrating the passage of time in a dynamic and captivating way. The clock movement, of French origin and signed "Vincent - Silver Medal 1885," is in perfect working order and complete with its bell and pendulum. The globe displays the time in 24-hour format, with gold Roman numerals for day and black numerals for night--an ingenious device that enhances both its functionality and its
