Description

Small Untouched 18th Century George III Period Figured Mahogany Bureau A stunning George III mahogany bureau of unusually small proportions. This charming late 18th-century George III period finely figured mahogany desk showcases exquisite craftsmanship and timeless appeal. The fall front with brass escutcheon and original lock, opens to reveal a well-organized fitted interior, consisting of two central drawers with pigeon holes and drawers to either side. This leads down to an arrangement of drawers, the bureau is fitted with four long graduated drawers, all adorned with elegant original carved brass handles and escutcheons. The piece stands proudly on original bracket feet, the sides in solid mahogany, the back in original oak boards, all contributing to its classic design. Made in England, circa 1780, this
