Description

Oil on canvas dating from the 1960s, presenting an abstract composition with clean, geometric forms. The work is characterized by a soft and luminous palette, dominated by pastel tones (gray, beige, bluish, and pinkish), typical of certain post-war abstract artistic explorations. The composition is organized around triangular shapes and structures suggesting an architectural or built space, treated with lightness and transparency. The brushwork is fluid, with subtle overlays that give an impression of depth and luminous vibrancy. A signature is present in the lower left corner, but is difficult to read. Period: Circa 1960. Technique: Oil on canvas.

Dimensions: 55 cm x 44 cm. Condition: Good overall condition. Minor wear and small signs of age are visible, consistent with the period.
