Description

This charming Louis XV period kneading table, crafted from walnut and pear wood, captivates with the harmony of its soft lines and the warmth of its hue. Its raised chest, once used for kneading and proofing dough, opens with a wide, hinged lid. Resting on graceful cabriole legs, the piece presents a light and flowing silhouette, typical of 18th-century aesthetics. The shades of the walnut forming the lid and the pear wood harmonize perfectly. The warm, even patina lends the piece an undeniable charm, enhanced by the refined simplicity of its construction. Today, this kneading table serves as a characterful accent piece, equally at home in a classic interior or a more contemporary setting. Its presence evokes the authenticity of homes of yesteryear while bringing a poetic and timeless touch to the
