Description

Circa 1900. The pinkish-gray background has a speckled appearance. The water lily flower is enhanced by a stylized, elongated midnight blue motif. This same motif is found somewhere between the soliflore and flute glass forms. The base and the container are adorned with a rounded bead. The cloudy, worn-looking upper section suggests that the artist had not yet mastered their craft. Nevertheless, the piece is rare and signed. Delivery is possible but not included in the price.
