Description

Iridescent glass vase with applied decoration, attributed to Loetz. Acquired at auction, this vase is attributed to the Loetz glassworks, an emblematic house of Bohemian Art Nouveau production. A piece that fits within the tradition of iridescent glass from the late 19th to early 20th century. The shape is particularly harmonious, with a curved base and a flared neck. The applied decoration in glass thread, with free and organic lines, recalls the naturalist creations characteristic of this period. The iridescence is remarkable: depending on the light, the vase reveals deep shades of green, blue, violet, and gold. The interior, tinted an intense purple, further accentuates the visual richness of the piece. The base features a polished pontil mark, attesting to quality craftsmanship. The overall condition is
