Description

A scene typical of the Pas-de-Calais coast in the 19th century: the dignified family waiting on the shore for the fisherman's return. Our painting depicts a fishing family--the husband and his three children--in a seascape. On the right, another fisherman is seen in his boat, brought ashore. In the background, on the right, fishing boats are returning to port. At the bottom left, the signature and the inscription "Boulogne a. Delacroix 1853" are visible. The canvas needs to be re-stretched on its frame. Original gilt frame (66 x 59 cm).
