Description

A very beautiful solid walnut wardrobe from the late 17th to early 18th century, harmoniously proportioned. The rarity of this piece lies in its small size and its four-door opening. The wardrobe opens at the front with four doors arranged in two rows, with two small drawers at the bottom completing the opening. Each door is carved with four triangular motifs in each corner, framing a central diamond-shaped motif, all with strongly molded edges. The two sides are double-paneled, also crafted, and feature the same motifs and moldings as the doors. This piece has been restored; the shelves, locks, and keyhole escutcheons have been replaced. An earlier repair, consistent with age, has been made to the back of the wardrobe at the level of the feet and the lower rear rail (see last photo). This piece is in
