Description

An elegant Lombardy Louis XV chest of drawers, dating from the mid-18th century, features harmoniously curved lines along the front and sides, in keeping with the typical Rococo style of the Po Valley. The piece is veneered in fine walnut burl, with rich, curved grain that creates a striking decorative effect across the entire surface. It features three drawers with beautiful original locks and contemporary handles; the rounded, sinuous profile culminates in slightly curved legs that slim the structure. The top, also in burl, displays meticulous workmanship and is perfectly in keeping with the overall elegance. A refined piece, typical of 18th-century Lombard production, combining masterful craftsmanship, exquisite woods, and a formal harmony of great visual impact. Period: Mid-18th century; Origin:
