Description

Description: A charming and original decorative marble book, made in Italy in the 19th century. Its cover is adorned with a finely crafted micromosaic plaque depicting an ancient Roman temple. This type of object is closely linked to the tradition of the Grand Tour, during which travelers collected refined souvenirs inspired by the monuments of ancient Rome. Micromosaic is composed of tiny tesserae, meticulously arranged to create a remarkably precise and detailed architectural scene. The contrast between the mass of the marble and the delicacy of the micromosaic decoration gives this piece a sculptural presence and artistic refinement. A highly sought-after collector's item, ideal for display in a cabinet of curiosities, on a desk, or in a refined interior. Dimensions: Height: 11 cm
