Description

Italian School, circa 1850
Circle of Paul Delaroche
Historical scene
Pencil on paper, watermark "F Barbarossa"
32 × 37.5 cm
This drawing, likely conceived as a preparatory study for a large-scale historical composition, reflects the diffusion in Italy of the artistic model developed by Paul Delaroche and his circle. Through its clear construction, narrative strength, and expressive interaction between the figures, it fully embodies this renewed vision of history painting as a form of theatrical, emotionally engaging storytelling. Delaroche's influence, widely spread across Europe in the mid-19th century, found a particularly receptive context in Italy. The present work stands as a characteristic example of this synthesis between academic structure and Romantic sensibility.
