Description

An important oil on canvas depicting a battle scene by the Veronese painter Antonio Calza (1653-1725), a leading figure in Baroque painting, who specialized in vibrant military compositions. The scene, of great dramatic intensity, depicts a cavalry battle within an architectural landscape, punctuated by the movements of the horses, the clashes, and the effects of smoke. The dynamic composition and rich detail testify to the artist's narrative talent. The work is accompanied by an expert opinion from Dr. Egidio Martini, a renowned art historian, who guarantees its attribution and places it around the end of the 17th century, following Calza's experience in Rome with Borgognone, whom the painter both inspired and resembled. Presented and sold in an antique gilded
