Description

Danish piece in solid and veneered teak, typical of Scandinavian design from the 1960s.
The left side features three drawers with integrated handles, while the right side consists of a long niche containing a removable galvanized metal planter box designed to hold plants.
The lower section includes an elegant slatted magazine rack.
The rounded edges of the uprights and the refined finish are characteristic of 1960s Scandinavian craftsmanship.
The piece is stamped under the planter "Made in Denmark" with the Arne Wahl Iversen logo.
Condition: very good original condition, with a few minor surface scratches on the top and light signs of use inside the drawers (see last photos).
