Description

Superb and rare bronze okimono, richly decorated with champlévé enamels, depicting the deity Samantabhadra, seated with clasped hands, on an elegant lotus-shaped base, itself resting on a finely sculpted elephant. This piece is distinguished by: Very high quality of execution, both in the modeling of the bronze and in the enamel work; Deep and nuanced enamel colors with vibrant reflections; A strong symbolic composition, the elephant being associated with wisdom and stability; A remarkable decorative presence thanks to its large size (height: 64 cm). The piece has a beautiful antique patina and richly detailed decoration, ideal for collectors of Asian art or lovers of distinctive decorative pieces. Japan, circa 1930. Condition: very good overall condition, with normal wear consistent
