Description

The Virgin's features, with her alabaster skin, straight nose, and expression of composed sweetness, reflect the neo-Renaissance purism typical of Sassoferrato, who looked to Raphael for inspiration. The use of primary colors, particularly the intense blue of the cloak (often achieved with the precious lapis lazuli in autographed works) and the red of the dress, is a trademark of this artistic genre. The gilded wooden frame is from the 19th century. It has been relined. Canvas measures 45 x 34 cm. Condition as per photo. I'm also on Instagram: "metcantedarteroma"
