Description

Grisaille oil painting on canvas after an engraving by François Boucher, "The Source." This painting, belonging to the Rococo movement, is representative of the artist's work, who depicted numerous gallant pastoral scenes, primarily intended for interior decoration. His recognized talent made him a court painter to King Louis XV and later to Madame de Pompadour. Old relining, labels on the stretcher. 18th-century giltwood frame. The canvas has been cleaned, and a small lifting area has been stabilized. Good overall condition.
