Description

A solid iron gate in the Directoire style, forged during the first quarter of the 19th century. A portcullis of spearheads crowns its top, aligned with the 20 mm diameter bars. A frieze of half-iron crossbars is riveted with small pieces. The gate's jamb is adorned with a capital, rings, and a lozenge. Its locks, without keys, are original. The lower plates are sound; repainted, it will regain its luster. The spearheads are 25 cm high. The frame dimensions are 30 mm². The height from the hinges to the axis is 109 cm and 221 cm.
