Description

Louis XV style walnut buffet, dating from the mid-19e century (circa 1850). This antique piece of furniture is distinguished by its finely carved decor, its curved lines and the quality of its cabinetwork. The front opens with two panelled leaves, adorned with embossed foliage carved in relief, accompanied by two drawers located under the top, providing additional storage space. The cabinet is topped by a top in griotte marble, prized for its deep hue and elegance, providing a refined contrast with the warmth of the walnut. The upper section forms an elegantly carved shelf, topped by a fronton decorated with a shell, an emblematic element of the Louis XV style. This upper section offers an ideal display space for decorative objects, porcelain or knick-knacks. The lower section is embellished
