Two pen-and-ink drawings in the spirit of engraver's drawings depicting one view of Strasbourg's famous garlic street and the other a view of the low tower of Boersch that serves as the entrance to this small town southwest of Strasbourg. Nothing found on this enigmatic O. Braun. perhaps allied with the Braun company, which specialized in photography and the publication of fine art photography, partly based in Alsace. The two drawings, mounted on Goupil cardboard, are sold unframed. The drawings alone measure 14x10 cm.
