Description

Large 18th-century Regency armoire . carved oak. It opens with two large molded doors richly carved with shells, scrolls and foliage in the rocaille taste characteristic of the Regency style. The median crosspiece features an elegant movement décor highly representative of early 18th-century Normandy furniture. It's the perfect place to start a conversation. The jambs are rounded and adorned with finely carved leafy falls. The panels are well proportioned and highlighted with elegant moldings. The cornice is strongly molded and overhanging, bringing a very nice presence to the whole. Beautiful antique ironwork with long plugs. The interior is fitted as a closet, offering practical use for a contemporary interior. Very fine 18th-century Norman regional work. Wood: solid oak Era: 18th century, Regency
