Description

Description: Elegant 19th-century Chinese lacquered box, richly decorated and full of character. The exterior is finely lacquered, while the interior, lined with engraved metal, is remarkably original. The contrast between the depth of the lacquer and the finesse of the interior decoration lends this piece great visual richness and testifies to exceptional craftsmanship.This type of box reflects the refined decorative tradition of export and locally produced lacquerware of the late Qing dynasty, where functionality and ornament were intimately linked. Its compact dimensions make it an ideal jewelry case, desk accessory or showcase object.The box shows signs of use and age, including light wear and missing parts, which contribute to its authenticity and old-world
