Description

It consists of three pieces: an oblong planter and a pair of 'urn' vases, in ceramic with enameled and gilded decoration on a cobalt-blue ground. Mark of Gien circa 1875 and labeled from the Marseilles branch (33 rue St. Ferréol) of the "Grand Dépôt" (2 rue Drouot in Paris). The three pieces bear a gilded decoration, of flowers in an entourage of finely painted 'rouelles' and braids of netting. Other flowers and foliage, executed in thick white and turquoise-blue enamel, add to the cobalt-blue background. The necks are encircled by ormolu galleries with handles, decorated with fleurs-de-lis and branches. The bases, also in ormolu with a pearl motif, rest on four cambered feet with 'mascarons'. Shaped pieces with a rare enamel motif (white and blue) standing out against a gilded decoration. Very good overall
