Description

Oil on canvas depicting a still life with fish and oysters, attributed to Pieter van Boucle (1610-1673), a Flemish painter active in Paris in the 17th century. This composition is fully in the tradition of Nordic still lifes, characterized by meticulous realism and a sober staging that highlights materials and reflections. The arrangement of the fish, the presence of cooking utensils and the treatment of textures testify to a quest for naturalistic effect typical of the Flemish school. Pieter van Boucle is known for his market scenes, his fish and game stalls, as well as his kitchen compositions, in the tradition of the great Flemish painters of the 17th century. The work presents a fine quality of execution, particularly in the rendering of scales, metallic reflections and flesh, as well as in the contrast between the
